New York Girl Accuses Sister, Foster Brothers and Doctors of Plot

New York, Jan. 28.—Foreboding drugging and abduction are charged in an amazing suit filed in the supreme court here by Miss Dicie Leonard against her sister, her two foster-brothers and two New York physicians, of whom she demands $1,000,000 damages for their alleged part in a plot defrauding her of a $250,000 inheritance from the estate of Mrs. Roberta Johns Buckley, her foster-mother.

The alleged conspiracy, according to papers filed by Dicie Leonard, her counsel, has since 1911, not only forced Miss Leonard to live in poverty, but also has so damaged her health that she has acquired tuberculosis, which, it is further set forth, is expected shortly to take her life.

FIVE DEFENDANTS.

The defendants named are Robert Johns Buckley and Henry Gordon Buckley, foster-brothers; her sister, Lydia Leonard Buckley; and George A. Blakeslee, successful and widely known New York physicians.

Miss Leonard, according to Mr. Malone, at the age of 17, was persuaded by the sister she accused to leave her home in Alabama, La., and come to New York to live with Mrs. Roberta Johns Buckley, an invalid.

The elder Mrs. Buckley, who had inherited $100,000 from her husband, took a fancy to Dicie, and made her the beneficiary of her extended foster care. It was on one of these trips, according to Mr. Malone, that Mrs. Buckley, who had known her intention to give her child a $250,000 share of her estate.

The Buckley brothers, Mr. Malone said, becoming aware of their mother's plan, conspired to prevent her from carrying it out, and to have her estate go to the state.

Mr. Malone said that Mrs. Buckley, who had been a member of the state bar, was a woman of high character and was a woman of high character.

CHARGES DRUGGING.

When in New York, Buckley was on her death bed, the charges continue, the brothers tried in every way to persuade Dicie to go to Mississippi, fearing that their mother's will would be changed to favor her. Mrs. Henry Buckley, it is said, joined in the efforts to get the girl out of the way.

Miss Leonard refusing the charges, the foster-brothers and the sister entered into a conspiracy with the accused doctors, the papers state, with the "aid of the three men who were to be the beneficiaries of her estate."

Miss Leonard said that she was a woman of high character and was a woman of high character.

MINISTER IS DEFENDED BY FLOCK

"Confession" of Chicago Wife Called Bunch of Dreams; Husband Seeks Divorce

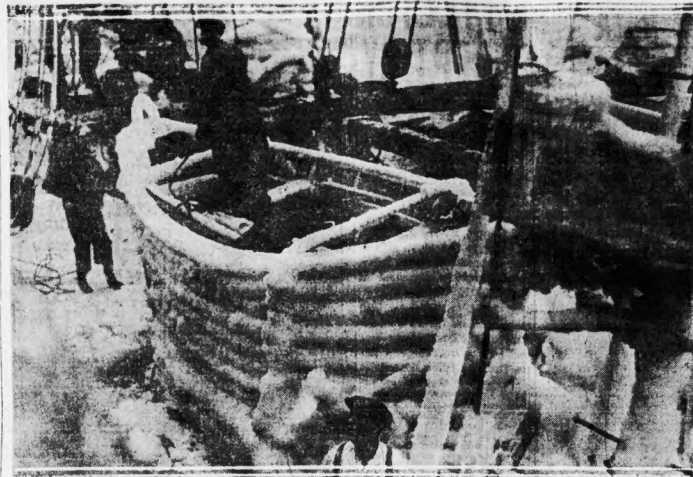

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Is Mrs. Albert R. Leland a victim of hallucinations? Did she tell the truth on the witness stand when, in slow, measured words, she related how the Rev. Dr. Carl D. Case, pastor of the Oak Park Baptist Church, led her step by step to the altar in which her marriage vows were shattered and the Seventh Commandment violated?

These questions have displaced snower weather as a topic through which the city and its largest minister, the minister, a plain man of about fifty, vehemently denies her story.

The picture of Mrs. Leland on the stand is that of a droll little woman, in her known, forties years old, pale, and evidently suffering from what is known in psychoanalysis as "hallucinations" and "repressed desires."

HAINES IS STILL SICK; TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Medford Ex-Mayor Unable to Journey From the South to Face Graft Charges Here

The trial of Benjamin F. Haines, former Mayor of Medford, on charges of graft and larceny grows less out of the construction of the Medford City Hall was indefinitely postponed today.

Medford City Hall was indefinitely postponed today when doctors' certificates were presented to Judge John P. Brown in East Cambridge Superior Court.

District Attorney Arthur K. Reading has asked that a reputable physician be appointed to investigate the former Mayor's illness completely and report his findings to Judge Brown. District Attorney Reading also expressed his anxiety to have the case cleared up as soon as possible.

Haines was indicted by the Middlesex County Grand Jury in October. The graft charges were made after Haines, it is alleged, appropriated the city's money for the construction of a new city hall in Medford square. Nothing but a hole marks the spot of the intended structure.

GILCHRIST CO.

Three boys. Her husband, Albert R. Leland, is a manufacturer's agent, and during the war was an investigator for the government.

It is charged in certain quarters that Leland is seeking to divorce his wife so he can marry Miss Mary Brown, an attractive woman many years younger than the present Mrs. Leland.

The church people, who are standing by Dr. Case, point to the government work of Leland as suggestive that he might have given his wife the third degree and forced a false "confession."

Dr. Case has a wife and two married daughters.

All the testimony indicates that Mr. Leland and his wife are deeply religious. He contributed to the church and she was one of its most active workers.

After a membership in the church for five years, Mrs. Leland, about eighteen months ago began to seek private prayer meetings with her pastor in his study.

She had written out a confession of fourteen pages in which she admitted the truth of her husband's worst suspicions. Referring to this confession, she said:

"I thanked my husband for asking me the questions to bring it out. Because I wanted him to know, and the only reason I had not told him before was because I thought Dr. Case was tempted as I."

Leland took the confession to court, requested divorce and named Dr. Case. The court agreed to a divorce, when Dr. Case intervened and asked to examine the woman and give his testimony.

CHARGES BRIEFLY.

Mrs. Leland in her confession tells in detail of the meetings in the pastor's study and the speeches which she says culminated in their transgression. Afterward, she said, she told the minister his right to pray for them both.

"Prayer did not halt the intimacy," according to the story. It was kept up until her husband last November was given a letter by Mrs. Leland to mail to Dr. Case. He forgot to mail it and ceased it, with the intention of telephoning the confession. What he read exposed him.

Leland promptly went to the desecrated and trustees of the church. They excommunicated the minister and pronounced his wife a victim of delusions.

BURNS ARE FATAL.

BROKER STEALS FROM CLIENT TO BUY SEAT

Judge Orders Probe of Charge That Lander Was Mulcted in Deal

New York, Jan. 28.—Judge McIntyre in General Sessions today ordered investigation of charges that S. Burton Lander, a broker, had been forced to pay $5,000 for a seat on the consolidated stock exchange normally costing but $2,000.

The charges were made by Benjamin Harrison, counsel for Lander, when the latter pleaded guilty to a charge of petty larceny Jan. 23. He alleged the money was paid to W. S. Stillworth, former president of the exchange, and that Lander, who is 23 years old, stole $2,000 from a client to obtain enough money to purchase the seat.

Lander, facing trial on charges of second degree grand larceny and receiving stolen goods, is at liberty under $1,000 bail.

KIND-Y-FACED QUINCY WOMAN OF 61 IS GREEDY QUACK

POSES AS CRYSTAL GAZER

His white haired grandmother is gazing.

She reads fortunes with a crystal globe.

She diagnoses for her ignorant clientele, mostly women dupes with that same crystal globe.

She sells medicine which she says is brewed by herself from a recipe originated by Indians. (An herb medicine, she calls it.)

In diagnosing, prescribing and dispensing of medicine Mrs. Phillips visits the State Medical Association and other reputable physicians all over New England.

In using a crystal ball as part of her "magical" performance, the white-haired old lady violates the laws of fortune telling of the State of Massachusetts.

WADDLES TO DOOR

Mrs. Phillips was first visited by a Boston American reporter on December 11 last. A young man who would refer to her as "the old lady" and a dependent woman and called before a not white cottage. It had a lawn, nicely cropped, and a New England atmosphere of pretentiousness.

When Smith reached the bell and a large, full-faced lady with white hair and a pleasant smile waddled to the door and peered through the glass paneled, between six and tasseled drapes partially raised, she looked to be just the sort of a person that should appear in that sort of cottage.

The door was opened.

"Is Mrs. Phillips at home?" asked Smith.

"I am Mrs. Phillips," said the lady.

"Who are you?"

"Smith was invited into a small room off the hall furnished much like an office, yet with so atmosphere decidedly unbusinesslike.

She motioned Smith to a chair. It was one of several straight-backed wooden chairs.

Smith noticed the most faded blue house dress Mrs. Phillips wore, also her shoes which were gray and strained as if walking took its toll on one so large.

FAST WORKER

"I came to tell you about my sister," Smith said as Mrs. Phillips sat in a chair, her small blue eyes glancing.

"She doesn't like to go to doctors," Smith continued, "and complains of poor health, so I came here to make arrangements for her to call."

"Mrs. Phillips spring to her feet with a suddenness that was startling. Putting a foot down at her sister she exclaimed: 'You are, too, are you? In perfect health. You are smiling, too much.' Smith smiled smugly.

Mrs. Phillips continued: "You are mechanically inclined. Mechanical work is your thing. You are strong, you, young man. You are strong to be wealthy. But you will suffer a great deal from rheumatism and nervousness, mostly in the right leg."

Smith looked properly alarmed, also at her, which is as well as the leg of a person pronounced healthy by reputable physicians could be.

"Can I be cured?" he asked nervously.

"Oh, you can find no cure for it," Mrs. Phillips said.

LOVES "GREEN"

After an impressive display Mrs. Phillips entered the room. She wore the same shabby shoes with run down heels, the same faded blue house dress and apron, of white.

"Make yourself at home," she said pleasantly, and passed on to the flowers, where she plucked a few dead leaves from the stems.

"What is your name?" she asked. "I do so love flowers," said Mrs. Phillips, beaming a smile on the caller. "They have so much color to them and I do love things with color. Color goes a long way in life."

Here it might be mentioned that green is her favorite color. The "long green."

Whirling about, Mrs. Phillips invited Miss Smith into the next room. This proved to be the office Smith had been in.

Mrs. Smith made a fuller survey of it than her supposed "brother." She noticed an electrical contrivance resting on a couch. On the floor was an oil cloth rug.

Near the couch contrivance, which was covered with a short, stout violet ray machine.

On the walls hung pictures of Indians. Among them were two pictures of Christ.

A large talking machine stood in one corner, in another an oak desk. In an oak cabinet on the wall were a collection of Indian relics, arrows, beads and the like.

HAS POOR MEMORY

Near the cabinet, Mrs. Phillips, masterpiece of feigning for effect on the ignorant hangs suspended. This is a trade of human hair, supposedly human scalp some Indian new from two unsuspecting Puritans.

With the relics make a fitting background for Mrs. Phillips' herb medicine, brewed, she claims, from an Indian recipe.

If they didn't, the Indian blanket which covered the center table as Miss Smith entered would have been covered. It was an elaborate blanket. Resting on its center was a green bag.

In that bag, wrapped in a dirty silk handkerchief that one lady said was white, was Mrs. Phillips' famous crystal ball.

She seated Miss Smith in a straight-backed chair then seated herself opposite her with the table between.

"Well, my dear," she said, "what seems to be the trouble with you?"

"My brother arranged for me to come," said Miss Smith.

"Oh, was he an Italian?" asked Mrs. Phillips.

"No," the caller replied.

"Of course not," exclaimed the white-haired lady who presumed to know the present and read the future. "You are an American."

She withdrew the crystal ball from its green balm bag but made no attempt to plumb the made of its depths. Instead she suddenly said to Miss Smith:

"Do you know what kind of medicine you want?"

"Why, no, I expect you to tell me that," said the caller.

"Well I cannot give you a reading of the future, but I can tell you what kind of medicine you want."

"What kind of medicine?"

"I am not a doctor, but I can tell you what kind of medicine you want."

MAJOR GENERAL IN RUSSIA, BAY STATE MAN NOW A DISHWASHER

NOBLE WIFE SHAPES HIS POVERTY

W. S. Nye, Native of Middleboro, Forced to Menial Job in Denver

Denver, Jan. 28.—From a major-general in the South Russia army of General Wrangel to humble dish-washer in the kitchen of the Denver County Hospital is the three-year transition of Edgar W. S. Nye, a native of Middleboro, Mass., and a soldier of fortune who has traveled and fought in many countries.

Nye's first venture, as a lad of 16, was in Panama, where he participated in a revolution as an officer in the regular army of that little country.

He enlisted in the 26th Massachusetts Volunteer Regiment for service in the Spanish-American war; later he joined the Philippine Constabulary and fought in Luzon. He spent several years in the regular army of the United States, and when the World War broke out he entered the French army service as an ambulance driver. Following the armistice Nye went to Russia and joined the forces that were fighting the Bolsheviks.

MILITARY BEARING. Nye is six feet tall and has the bearing of a military man. His story, told as he labored at the steaming dishwashing machine in the County Hospital, is one of those semitragic tales born of the fortunes and misfortunes of war.

"I'd rather nothing would be known about it," said the 37-year-old globe trotter; "but as long as you have found out the things you have I might as well tell you the rest."

"I'm not very proud of this job, but my wife and I have to do it. I had to have something quick, so I took what I could get and will continue to be a dishwasher until I can find something better. It is the most menial task I ever performed since I started out at the age of fifteen to be a so-called soldier of fortune, but it is honorable and serves to keep the wolf from the door."

"We were broke, that's all," Nye continued. "I couldn't find what I wanted, so I took what I could get and I had to get something right away. Poverty isn't a pleasant thing, but it's a fact of life."

KNOW YOUR OWN. Nye has labored with Russian royalty and married the Princess Chervostoff, niece of Nicholas Chervostoff, late Russian Premier under the czarist rule.

A grim smile played over the stern but kindly face of the fighting man as he reminisced. At times he chuckled as he mentioned some humorous phases of his experiences, but a grim smile was always discernible in the eyes as he related details of the Red ravaging of Russia.

He smoked the black pipe typical of army men, talked readily and fluently, although his voice grew husky at intervals—the result of being gassed. He was shellshocked also in the last victorious offensive waged by the Bolsheviks against the remnants of General Korniloff's army in southern Russia.

Following the armistice of the World War, Nye, urged by Prince Chervostoff, whose sister he afterward married, went to Russia to join the army being raised by General Korniloff and General Alexeeff, former Chief of Staff of the Czar's army, to fight the Bolshevik forces. Nye was made a captain and later promoted to major-general. He served in the South Russian forces for two years until the "White Army" was finally defeated and the Bolshevik forces drove Korniloff's army, then in command of General Wrangel, into the Black Sea.

BURIED IN DUGOUT. During this last battle Nye was buried with several others in a dugout, following the explosion of a shell. Eight hours later they managed to dig themselves out. Nye made his way through the enemy lines until he reached an old ambulance. In that vehicle he got to Simferopol, thence to Constantinople.

In the latter city he found a friend who was captain of a Russian gun boat and was enabled to make his way back to Paris.

MY ALLISON TO FORGET FIGHT FOR DIVORCE

Film Star Wood Annew by Husband Cannot Help Forgiving

Los Angeles, Jan. 28.—Robert Ellis lives in an apartment. Mrs. Robert Ellis lives in another apartment.

Perhaps, after a while, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellis will live in the same apartment. "Time will tell," said May Allison, film star.

She knows, because she is Mrs. Robert Ellis, and although a divorce court almost put "former" in front of her title of wife, she chooses her maid.

The divorce that she almost had been called off, canceled, thrown out of court and crossed off the books.

May Allison is still Mrs. Robert Ellis, but she is having all the thrills of a second courtship with her lawful husband doing the courting.

That's the part of the agreement. The Robert Ellis will not go to take a sudden plunge back into matrimony.

They are going back—if they decide to keep on going—slowly and carefully, being very sure of themselves before they take another step.

They don't want to make any more mistakes, and although they parted on friendly terms before Mrs. Allison filed her suit, they don't want to start on the road to another parting, friendly or otherwise.

In the meantime, Robert Ellis telephoned to Mrs. Robert "Ellis" and asked her to go to a party, and she says yes, she'll love to.

And he calls for her and takes her to the party, and they have a delightful time, and when it is over, he says good night at the door of her apartment and goes home to his own apartment.

They really get a lot of fun and satisfaction out of the situation, and if it works out as that one of the apartment is given up, the Robert Ellis will move into his wife's one they decide to keep with pretty reasonable assurance that this time they are sure.

WANT JUDGE'S REMOVAL FOR DRUNKEN ROW

Sheriff, Dry Agents and Police Scored for Failure to Arrest Jurist

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 28 (T.N.S.)—Beneath the removal of Judge Charles T. Cates, Jr., from the Circuit Bench, if after investigation by the Governor "the charges are sustained," were sent to Nashville today, following their adoption at the Democratic Avenue Baptist Church, where George McCall, pastor of the church introduced the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

The church severely scored the Knox County sheriff, Federal prohibition officers and the police, who, it is alleged, stood by and refused to arrest Judge Cates when it was charged he became disorderly.

Cates, former State Attorney-General, and recently appointed to the Circuit Bench by Governor Peay, is alleged to have become intoxicated and attacked G. Frank Nelson, an automobile salesman, in the post office.

According to the charges, Cates threw a "fruit jar, containing white soap" striking Nelson in the face. Cates issued a statement, in which he said he "remembered nothing of the affair" and added that, "if I injured anyone, of course I am ready to make reparations." The statement admitted "taking a drink" and said a friend had given him a bottle of whiskey to take home.

WILSON'S WAY HERE FOR PLEASING BATTLE WITH

WILSON'S WAY HERE FOR PLEASING BATTLE WITH

WILSON'S WAY HERE FOR PLEASING BATTLE WITH

By JACK CONWAY
Johnny Wilson, former world's midweight champion, will arrive in Boston early this evening, prepared for his ten-round battle with the besetting Paul Reed of Natick, which will be staged by the Army A. A. at Mechanics Building tomorrow night. Wilson completed his training with a workout at the camp at Summit, N. J., this evening. He then hopped over to New York and entered for this city.

Wilson and Reed are expected to furnish one of the most spectacular ring contests ever staged in this city. It will be the third meeting between the pair. Wilson was two questionable decisions and will have to put up the battle of his career if he is to finish out in the Triple A's show.

Reed has worked harder for this match than for any contest in which he has ever engaged. Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion and a stablemate of Reed's has helped Paul in preparation for the fray.

It is the intention of the National Amateurs to set a future pace from the time the bell sounds at the opening of the first round. It will be kept punching away with both hands and believes that such a line of campaign will enable him to finish out front.

Wilson and Reed battled at the Arena last November, the decision went to Wilson after ten stirring rounds of fighting. Many of those who witnessed the contest were of the opinion Reed had won.

Paul looked particularly brilliant in the second frame when he landed a heavy left-hand shot to Wilson's jaw. The latter reeled back against the ropes. Reed followed up with a straight with both hands and had the former champion in distress at the bell.

Wilson came back in the next round and by clever boxing was able to bring out more from Reed. He started a new surge in the third round and continued his amazing drive until the contest ended.

Wilson later returned to Boston and won over Pat McCarthy in three rounds. The former champion displayed remarkable form in his second contest, with Boston's Red and McCarthy. He continued his fine work in the first ten rounds of his bout with McCarthy.

In the third, fourth and fifth sessions, he will have McCarthy's favorite strategy and on the ropes. It was Wilson's fight at the end of the bout and he was then slowed up, while Reed came fast and won a brilliant decision.

Wilson has attempted to offer an alibi for his defeat by Reed. The fact that Mr. Wilson was not well prior to the bout affected Johnny's mental condition. Now that Johnny is the proud father of an eight-month baby girl he has not any home worries and can devote all of his time and energy to winning a title such as world's midweight champion.

Reed would like to stage another Wilson fight at the Arena, which was a big draw in New York. The Wilson-Reed battle was the most important of the indoor season in New York. Wilson cannot lose. He has a title but he has first defeated Reed. This looks like quite an assignment.

Wilson made a bit with the fans, as did Reed, by agreeing to a contest Jack Malone in this city. A contest between the stars of tomorrow night's starlin and the spectacular Malone would make a handsome attraction.

Then there is Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, who has been in the city for some time. Jack Bell, Walker's manager, informs us he is prepared to sign the Elkhorn Theater for a fight between Wilson, Malone and Negash in Boston.

The willingness of our leading middleweights to take on all comers has revived interest in the class and has Harry Greb, the champion, look for whom he has been waiting for some time plenty of activity in the middleweight division this year.

It will be like a shot at the Trip A tomorrow. Thousands of Bostonians will gather at the tipple to see Wilson and Reed again. The former champion will be in the line-up. Exalted Ruler Daniel Kane of the Boston Lodge will head the delegation that will journey to Mechanics Building.

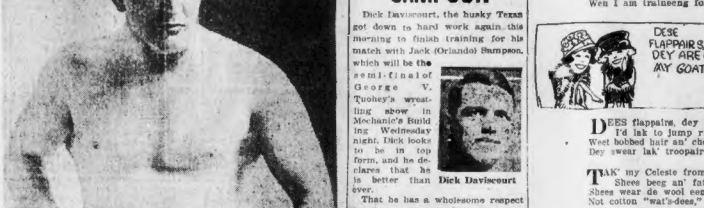

There is considerable interest in the appearance of the North End and Joe Moore of Charlestown will manage in another fight. Babe Adams of Lawrence will tackle Johnny Moore of the North End in a "House of" fight.

ALWAYS PICKED BY LEWIS TO BEAT STASIAK

Ed Strangier Lewis, the World champion wrestler, was asked before tonight's bout what his opinion was as to the outcome of the Stasiak-Alvarez wrestling bout.

"Why," said Ed, "I will bet a tough match but I believe Pan Alavarez will win. He is one tough customer and I was lucky when I did look for him to bring his head back into play and trap the Big Toe."

I shall give the winner of the bout a chance at the title at a later date. I am greatly impressed by the manner in which this game is conducted and the wrestling in Boston. I will be glad to come back again."

Alavarez is right on the job here and putting on the finishing touches to his training. The big champion Stasiak, who is confident he will make good, should have made more of his time on Thursday night, he will have more time to rest and will be in better condition to win this time. He has gained the confidence of the Polish people in the wrestling game and they are for him almost to a man to uphold the Polish champion on the mat.

ASSENTS MOORE FORT DAKS TO BETTER HOLD BOUTS TOOD FRIDAY

Harry Kelley says that Ted Moore, the British middleweight, is a better fighter than Ted Todd, the British heavyweight. He says that Moore is able to carry the fight much better than Todd. He demonstrated in his fight with Tommy Loughran that he has pugilistic brains," says Kelley. In the first two minutes of fighting he was on the floor twice but after that Tommy never hit him a real hard punch in nine rounds despite the fact that Moore carried the fight to him every moment. Had the battle gone five rounds longer Moore would have undoubtedly scored a win.

Moore was authorized to state that the Yankee Stadium match was one of the best of the service since he was in the service. He is somewhat larger than that of the Polo Grounds. He was told that the officials of the Stadium make a former offer in writing.

FLEE TEAM IN HARD BATTLE AT ALLEYS

Another year has passed and the boys that are out after the fall and winter are at it again. One of the most promising bowling leagues in the great city of Boston is the Boston Retail Store Bowling League, which is composed of ten of the leading bowling houses in the city.

William Filene's Sons Company team is hoping to win four straight titles. On Wednesday night of this week the team in the Boston Retail Store Bowling League will meet again at the North Station Alley on Friday night.

Baby's Hope Chest Gave Wilson Greatest Thrill

Stacy Niles—Johnny Wilson has been presented with an eight-pound baby girl. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Which recalls a scene in the Silver Slipper, a New York cabaret operated by Frank Marlow, Wilson's manager. The time was 1930. A. M. on the morning after Wilson had lost to Harry Greb after fifteen rounds of grueling battling at Madison Square Garden.

Shaded lights cast a dull glow over the interior of the cabaret. A Hawaiian woman played weird music, while the late diners amused themselves dancing.

Suddenly all three in the cabaret turned their eyes toward the entrance. Johnny Wilson had arrived. The music became more cheerful, the dancers counted their one step.

AMATEUR RING STARS CLASH TONIGHT

Nine bouts will perform under the flashing columns at the St. Joseph's Club, 100 Commercial Hall, Boston Square tonight.

President John J. O'Connell, who will be in the ring, has been selected to referee the bouts. The bouts will be held at 10:30, 11:30, 12:30, and 1:30.

There is not anything as amusing as an amateur boxing show in which only novices appear. Such a spectacle also provides more action than any other kind of sport.

MOODY SURE TO GIVE BOGASH A BATTLE

Louis Bogash, the undisputed middleweight title, will face a sturdy opponent in Frank Moody, the hard hitting Welshman, at the Commercial A. C. in the Nechanos Building, next Tuesday night.

Moody will engage in any bout until he leaves for the Commercial Club, which assures the fans that both will be on edge for their clash here. Bogash and Moody have posted 1000 fights for 100 pounds and the middleweight title for 125 pounds.

A match which creates as much interest as the main bout is that in which Archie Walker, the Irish lightweight from New York, will fight Marchant, lightweight champion of England, at the Commercial A. C. in the Nechanos Building, next Tuesday night.

Walker is the new sensation amongst the lightweighters. He is groomed for the lightweight title and already has posted a record of 100 fights for 125 pounds.

HOPE WILSON BEATS REED

Malone is down to fight the winner of Tuesday evening's fight between Johnny Wilson and Pat Reed. Many are hoping that Johnny tops the Framingham farmer for they have long wished to see Wilson in the same ring with Jack.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Best Comparative Daily Table Published in New England

The Columbian National Life Insurance Company of this city, which began business in 1902, under the new insurance laws of Massachusetts, has received its annual statement as of December 31 last. The statement ranks it as one of the "most successful" of all corporations with paid insurance in the United States, with approximately 168 millions of assets.

The Columbian National office policy is to "insure the family," which means that it sells life policies at a low fixed cost, guaranteed by its unique reserves, and its capital assets and surplus which are "backed up" by the company's "no share" policy practice. No salaries are made and the company is run on a "no salary" basis. The company plan it gives the greatest protection to the family, and the most freedom for the lowest initial outlay.

A comparative study of five-year records of the company's activities shows its healthy expansion in all its branches. Its business is controlled by a local agency general manager, who is elected by the shareholders, with insuring general agencies in the lower cities. Its finances are controlled by a local agency general manager, who is elected by the shareholders.

The company's general manager is president of the company and its local agency general manager is president of the company. The company's general manager is president of the company and its local agency general manager is president of the company.

Frank W. L. Brown, No. 77 Franklin Street, Boston, is the general manager of the company. The company's local agency general manager is president of the company.

Sentimental Nonsense About Children

And Business Brutality
Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

In mills and factories, young children are worked long hours every day, deprived of fresh air and sunlight, their chance for normal growth and a successful future destroyed.

When Congress tried to prevent that, passing a law that would forbid transporting from one State to another the products of child labor, the Supreme Court said you can't do that, it isn't constitutional.

But in New York when Chaff, who teaches children to dance, inculcating grace and harmony of movement, announces an annual performance with children DANCING, up rises the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and says, "No, no, you can't do THAT. No child must dance in public under sixteen years of age."

There have been pleasantly contrasted the powerful, overruling brutality of business and the sentimental nonsense of the professional philanthropist—very philanthropic when it doesn't cost anybody anything.

The Supreme Court says it isn't constitutional for Congress to pass a law preventing working children to death and depriving them of their chance. That's business, MONEY IS INVOLVED, you are interfering with the sacred rights of one full-grown American to exploit the children of other Americans.

But when a man teaches children to dance, as all children should be taught, and when to encourage them with applause and ambitious rivalry he announces, once in a year, an exhibition by children, hands are raised in horror and he is forbidden to let any child appear under sixteen years of age.

Children can dance, and do dance actually in their babyhood, not only without injury, but with benefit to themselves. This is a world of hypocrisy and nonsense, but luckily it is slowly improving.

Street Railway Merger

Eastern Lines Should Not Be Unloaded Upon the Boston Elevated in a Way to Keep Up Latter's 10-Cent Fare

We should watch very carefully the Greeks bearing gifts. We do not want to have the Eastern Railway unloaded upon the Boston Elevated Railroad, under conditions which will keep the Boston Elevated's fares continually high. We say this apropos of the suggestion that the Eastern Railway lines running through Chelsea, Revere, Malden, Everett and Maplewood be turned over to the Boston Elevated so that the citizens of that section may enjoy a ten-cent fare to Boston.

Of course, they ought to enjoy a ten-cent fare to Boston, and something ought to be done to help them enjoy it. But we want to be careful that an old, broken-down system is not loaded upon the Boston Elevated, not so much to reduce the fares as to keep the Boston Elevated fares up so that a steady reduction under public operation might not be made an object lesson to those who are still hesitating about public operation of the public utilities.

We notice that Mr. Henry I. Harriman is chairman of the Metropolitan Planning Commission. We notice also that Mr. Harriman is sitting in on these conferences concerning the assumption by the Boston Elevated of certain sections of the Bay State. Now, Mr. Harriman is a gentleman whose public spirit we do not for a moment challenge. Yet Mr. Harriman happens to be at the head of a very large public utility—one of the largest in New England—and one of the first which the government—acting in a general movement for the public operation of the public utilities—would take.

Mr. Harriman is a successful man, is presumably far-sighted. That he would deliberately engage in the doing of something against the public interest while he was serving as a public servant, we do not even suggest. But the protection of the Boston Elevated is the thing which is indicated that it must be protected would not naturally appeal to Mr. Harriman as either necessary or sound.

Mr. Rathskew, who is another member of the board, is a banker. If you want to find a group hostile by interest to the public operation of the public utilities, you want to walk in upon a group of bankers. Mr. Rathskew would not, while acting as a public officer, consciously do anything against what he considers to be the public interest, we believe. But we must beware of the point of view of our public officials when serving us in a public capacity.

Various Things in the News

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

There is one excellent thing about primitive religious ideas. However things turn out, all is well. For instance, last Sunday in New York three thousand members of the Greek Orthodox Church marched down to Battery Park to celebrate the Epiphany, according to a custom many centuries old in the Greek church.

When the crowd had assembled, the priest, a Reverend Dorotheos Bouranias, threw out far into the ice cold waters of the bay a wooden figure of the Christ who died. Immediately eight men jumped in and brought the cross ashore.

This is done to typify the willingness of the whole congregation to sacrifice itself if necessary.

Quickly putting on their clothes over wet bathing suits, the eight men marched a long way through the streets to the church.

If they were all well on Monday morning that was a fairly good miracle. On the other hand, if one of them got pneumonia and died he went immediately to heaven, having died in such a good cause, and that is also very satisfactory.

It is difficult to suggest anything that could satisfactorily take the place of deep-rooted faith.

Somebody probably wrote the famous speech for "Single Speech" Hamilton.

England now knows that it takes more than Rudyard Kipling's "high spots" in his cousin Baldwin's speeches to convince British workmen that a tariff on life's necessities is wise on an island that can't support itself and must live by exporting and importing. Labor now rules England. Kipling's cousin is out.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SENORITA CARMEN LUCIA DE LA ROSA, late of Buenos Aires and San Antonio, Texas, is a prize fighter. She is beautiful to look upon, musical to listen to, but she packs a deadly wallop that has bloodied many a nose in Mexico City, at the Plaza del Chapultepec, Orizaba, Oaxaca and Puebla. Jack Dempsey and Louis Firpo are her friends. She has boxed with "Dead Pan," although it is not on record that she bloodied his nose. Do not be misled into thinking that the lady is doing this sort of thing for a joke. She is immensely proud of her standing as a Tough Proposition. When she slips her 147 pounds of supple flesh into tight and strapping small hands within the padded muffs, she is as formidable an opponent as any mere man would want to face.

"Disgusting!" you say. Well, that's as you look at it. Personally, Lady Prize Fighter, are not my idea of objects of art. I pack a pretty good right myself, but I've never dedicated it to the pounding of anything more lively than a soda biscuit. But although I've never seen or participated in a prize fight, I do not think that being a prize fighter is the worst use to which the female of the species can be put. In fact, I doubt if the Lady Prize Fighter has outraged the splendid original plan of womanhood half so much as the Clinging Vine, which is still so well esteemed in our best society. When I survey the perfect flower of my sex mingling along in high-heeled slippers, whirling at troubles which shouldn't bother a three-year-old child, cringing from dangers which no self-respecting boy of ten would shun, using her femininity as a blanket alibi for all sorts of laziness, cowardice, stupidity and meanness—when I survey this extremely common sight, I wish I'd been born a gorilla. I don't want anything to do with a race of animals which will tolerate such monstrosities.

We protest against the vulgarity of bared, fighting woman flesh, giving and taking punishment in the prize ring. But what of the vulgarity of groomed and perfumed woman flesh which slithers through life taking its toll of human strength and love and ingenuity and giving nothing in return? Why should we consider a Helpless Woman any more admirable than a Helpless Man? Why should we sneer at a Male Coward and Coddle a Female Coward? The theory of a woman's physical inferiority to man is an exploded myth. Under modern conditions a woman can keep herself fit as a man. She can endure the strains and face the dangers which he can face. Also, the industrial handicap has been eliminated. Not only can she keep her muscles as fit as a man, but she can keep her purse as full. The Clinging Vine SHOULD BE as extinct as the dodo. She should be an object of contempt and derision. In comparison to the Female Parasite, the Female Prize Fighter should be regarded as a glorious representative of her sex. But is she? And do we?

DR. FRANK CRANE ON NELLIE REVELL'S FINE BOOK

By Dr. Frank Crane

M EET Nellie Revell. I have just met her, met her in the only way that thousands of my readers can meet her, met her in the pages of her book, "Right Off the Chest."

If you will get this book, pay money for it, write your name in it, and leave it around where you can pick it up any hour of the day or night and you don't like it and are not glad of it, you are off my list.

You are probably a cynic or a bonafide, or both. Nellie Revell was a press agent. Irving Cobb said, "She was the first woman press agent in this country and one of the best ones, man or woman, that has ever been."

She spent most of her life necessarily among people who are commonly considered vain, artificial, over-sophisticated and cynical. But she was human herself and she found that these people were likewise human. She loved them and because she loved them she understood them, for no one can understand any sort of people except he loves them.

Then came hard luck. She lost all her money, her life savings were swallowed up. Something happened to her spine and she was taken to the hospital.

It is a foregone conclusion for a human being who is energetic, who loves the business of living and who finds joy in work to be thrust into enforced idleness. And it was idleness accompanied by agony. And behind the agony stood the prospect of incurable suffering the rest of her days.

And here comes the real punch in this story. When disaster met her, when the invading armies of suffering and failure marched her troops through her soul, she was the enemy smiling, she went down without wincing.

She proved to the world, what can never be proved enough to the world, that no human soul can be defeated if it refuses to surrender.

As she lay in the hospital she wrote this book, literally "off the chest," for she wrote it lying upon her back with the writing pad upon her chest.

The book is not full of sentimental vapors, nor smooth worn platitudes, nor hollow sounding phrases. Indeed it is so light and cheerful and crowded with good jokes and genuine fun that I doubt whether the board of censorship would allow it in the Sunday School library.

But it is a book of victory just the same. It is the only kind of book that I think anybody has an excuse for writing. I mean the kind that renews our courage, backs up the drooping spirits, makes men ashamed of their moral cowardice and so helps the world.

There have never written a gloom-spreading book as far as I can remember, and I never read gloom-spreading books if I can help it. It may be very grand and noble to be pessimistic and tragic and hopeless and despairing, but I have gloom germs enough born in me and I do not need to eat any out of a book.

Nellie Revell made an amazing discovery while she was in the hospital. It was that while she had lost her money, yet her best investment was exceedingly profitable. It was her investment in friendship. She seems to have known as many people as S. J. Kaufman, which means that she knew everybody who was anybody who was anything.

And all she remembered her and came to see her and filled her heart and hands with the fine usufruct of love and loyalty. Go and buy this book. Do not get it out of a library. (Copyright, 1924, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON ARROWS FROM SUN

By Garrett P. Serviss
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

ALTHOUGH the sun is not to be likened to a fire, or a body of flames, or a glowing combustion, yet it is manifestly the cause of heat upon the earth, as a radiator in the case of the sun. It is so evident to common observation that the sun is the cause of the heat which we feel upon the earth, that the statement should be given out, from the sun, that the sun is the cause of the heat which we feel upon the earth.

As one proof that the sun is the cause of the heat which we feel upon the earth, Serviss calls attention to a correspondence which he has found between the quantity of radioactive disintegration products in the earth's atmosphere and the movement of calcium clouds over the sun's disk as shown by spectroheliograph photographs taken at Mount Wilson.

That three hitherto unexpected radio arrows aimed at us from Apollo's bow play some part in the weather of the weather, and consequently in the course of our health and happiness, and in the course of our selective action among its different forms of radiant energy, the sun governs the weather for us—or in spite of us.

Hermann Bondarev, a German physicist, has recently brought out facts which may produce a revolution of views concerning the origin of some of the radio-active effects that have been noticed in the earth's atmosphere, and have heretofore been ascribed to exhalations from the sun and the earth.

As one proof that the sun is the cause of the heat which we feel upon the earth, Serviss calls attention to a correspondence which he has found between the quantity of radioactive disintegration products in the earth's atmosphere and the movement of calcium clouds over the sun's disk as shown by spectroheliograph photographs taken at Mount Wilson.

But her career as a poet, court beauty for history, and finally to have been very happy—was short and, contrary to the sophisticated viewpoint of today, which declares that she never kills, Pocahontas is said to have died of a broken heart.

She never ceased to love Captain John Smith.

Her only child, a little son, was educated in England and afterwards returned to Virginia where he became wealthy and distinguished.

Many of the proud "first families" of that State boast their descent from Pocahontas.
